Various Industries in Good Shape All Over the State.

Labor Commissioner James B. Dohert has transmitted to Governor Montague the seventh annual report of his department and the document is quite an in teresting one to those who pay attention to industrial matters.

The report opens with the following inroduction: In making this report, cov ering the business done in the year 1903, inder the various industries treated, the system of making a comparative statetion has been adhered to, since experience has demonstrated the convenience and sefulness of the system.

The want, the value, of reliable industrial statistics is being recognized more and more from year to year; in fact, statistics go hand in hand with advancing civilization, and it is from the knowledge acquired from this source that both legislation and business are directed and

The report made on the industries treat-

The report made on the influstries treated show a healthy condition everywhere; wages and prices have kept well up, and a general feeling of confidence in future prosperity prevails.

A limited addition to the appropriation made this department will admit of more extended treatment of the various industries in the ensuing editions. Instead of reporting the several industrial bi-ennially, as heretofore, each will be reported on annually, thereby giving from year to year, a full report of the Industrial condition of the Commonwealth. The compilation of decisions bearing on laws effecting labor will be found of interest both to the professional man and layman.

The figures on the vote in the Ninth district show that the counties and city composing it will be entitled to about one-third of the entire likt of delegates to the State Convention next year. That convention will effect a reorganization of the Republican party in the State, and the fight against State Chairman Fark Agnew will then be renewed. At the convention at Norfolk last summer the Ninth district delegates, almost to a man, and practically all the Third district supported Judge Lewis for permanent chairman and tavored Colonel Slemp for State chairman. The Agnew faction won out, however. With one-third of the entire convention against him, and with many if mo other sections of the State uniting with the southwest, it looks now as if the reorganizers will organize and control the State convention and choose the State chairman and the executive committee.

The history of this growth is one of just interest.

For years the lamented Prof. II. H. Hards, while professor of Greek, was an advocate of regular Bible study and from time to time organized and conducted classes in it. In 1837, Dr. H. A. Tupper was made professor of Bible teaching, regular classes until his death in 1902. Since that time the movement has continued to grow until now three members of the faculty-Prof. Caines, Whitsitt and W. A. Harris, conduct successful classes with attendance of sixty men. Timekeeper Says He Called Time

Some question has been raised as to the result of the foot-ball game on Saturday, between the two strong local teams, the Redskins and the Olympias. The score as reported was 10 to 10. The manager of the Redskins, Mr. A. R. Carroll, writes a letter, in which he explains that the score should have been 10 to 5 in favor of the Redskins. He states that time-keeper called "time" before the Redskins retired from the fleid, and that, therefore, the score should have remained as it was at that time.

If such were the case, the referee could not have dealered the game a 1th. It must have been forester. In bearing out this statement Manager Carroll submits the following letter from the official time-keeper, which of course, gives the game to the Redskins:
